

It's time, this is taking too long, having depression adhd and dyslexia as a youth I smoked marijuana, I was always employed, worked hard and contributed to society. Now I am older, because it is socially Unaccepted I struggle to cope with anything, noise, aggression, trying to remain focused in social and work environments. I don't work, thankfully I am married so my husband supports me, but I suspect I am on the spectrum also, I have autistic children and while they may never need to use I hope that one day in the foreseeable future they will have the choice, alcohol destroys so much, but because it is socially acceptable I come from a family of aggressive drunks. If they could be medicated with something that doesn't cause aggression my life would be a whole different story.
