JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS, DEFENCE AND TRADE

Inquiry into Australia's trade and investment relationship with the United Kingdom

Issue date: Monday, 12 December 2016

Future of Australia's trade with the United Kingdom

The Trade Sub-Committee of the Parliament's Joint Standing Committee on Foreign Affairs, Defence and Trade (JSCFADT) has commenced an inquiry into Australia's trade and investment relationship with its largest trading partner in Europe - the United Kingdom.

'Following the United Kingdom's referendum decision to leave the European Union, it is timely to conduct an inquiry into Australia's trade relations with the UK,' the Chair of the Trade Sub-Committee, Senator Bridget McKenzie said.

'With two-way trade in goods and services worth more than $23 billion, the UK has long been a significant trade and investment partner for Australia. The Sub-Committee will investigate the opportunities to expand these trade and investment links, and the merits of a possible bilateral free trade agreement with the UK, especially as both countries navigate a new trading path with each other.'

'This inquiry will include an examination of the possible implications for Australia's trade and investment relationships with the UK and the EU, depending on how and when the UK negotiates its exit from the EU.'

The inquiry will also look at the significant UK investment in Australia and Australian investment in the UK. According to the Minister for Trade, Tourism and Investment, the Hon Steven Ciobo MP, who referred the inquiry to the JSCFADT, UK businesses have direct investments worth $76 billion in Australia, rising to nearly $500 billion when portfolio and other investments are included. Australia had direct investments of $81 billion in the UK and $353 billion overall in 2015.

Tourism also remains another important export for Australia with nearly 700,000 British visitors coming to Australia last year, who collectively spent almost $4 billion in Australia. In 2015-16, the UK Office for National Statistics reported more than 600,000 Australians visited the UK.
