Unfortunately I am unable to give you a timeframe. However, the Solicitor-General's office is aware of the timing constraints.

Thank you for looking at this during the weekend. It is much appreciated.

Do you have any sense of the timeframe for the S-G's Office?

Sensitive: Legal
Dear Robert

As discussed, I have referred your request to Megan Caristo, Counsel Assisting the Solicitor-General and provided her with your below email.

Legal work involving constitutional law issues is tied to AGS and the Attorney-General's Department under the Legal Services Directions 2005. Constitutional work is tied because constitutional issues have significance for the whole-of-government, not just the responsible agency, requiring a coherent and coordinated approach. I note my earlier advice to you that I have formed the view this request for advice is tied.

Regards

Petra Gartmann
Assistant Secretary
Legal Services Policy Branch (incorporating the Office of Legal Services Coordination)

On behalf of the Commissioner of Taxation I am formally requesting your agreement to his obtaining independent legal advice as to his legal obligations if the Attorney-General was to give directions under the Judiciary Act that the Commissioner not intervene in the matter currently before the High Court concerning the constitutional validity of the Western Australian legislation dealing with the Bell Group of companies. In the first instance we would seek the advice from the Solicitor-General.

The advice would be sought in the context of the Commissioner's obligations as an independent statutory officeholder entrusted with the administration of Commonwealth income tax laws and the collection of income tax debts.
