

SELECT COMMITTEE ON COVID-19

19 JUNE 2020

Attorney-General's Department

Senator Stirling Griff asked the following question on 19 June 2020:

Can the Department advise:

1. The Attorney-General has increased the debt threshold required for a creditor's petition in bankruptcy from $5,000 to $20,000 in order to stop people losing their homes over comparatively small debts.
 - a. Is the Attorney-General considering maintaining this as a permanent threshold beyond September 2020?
 - b. If so, when will a final decision be made, and if not, why not?

The response to the honourable Senator's question is as follows:

The Government is considering how best to respond to the impacts of COVID-19 beyond the temporary measures currently in place, including with respect to the $5,000 bankruptcy threshold.
