Shaun Newman

To whom it may concern,

Please accept my submission. I do not require this submission to be made confidential.

I was invalidated out of the workplace many years ago by an Australian multinational company, who bullied me and played on the fact that I had a mortgage, so coerced me into working extreme amounts of unpaid overtime, which finally led a to complete nervous breakdown, and left me with major depression and anxiety disorder for life.

Industrial law should be strengthened to stop clerical sweatshops from operating in Australia, and clerks should be protected against unscrupulous employers.

Sincerely,
Shaun Newman
