

Hi my name is rupal I applied for permanent residency in 2009. I am very terrified with this Migration amendment bill 2010 because it will give the powers to immigration minister to cancel valid applications for TR and PR without giving any valid reasons.

I am working as chef from past two years in Australia. I don't understand how come being a chef, cook or hairdresser has become a crime in Australia. It is just stereotyping. Immigration minister is making changes in immigration policies so fast that it is making future students who are thinking of coming to Australia and present students studying in Australia more and more confused.

When I applied for PR I had given all required document required then why my application can be cancelled just like that. If there are more applications for TR or PR then hire more staff to clear backlog. I applied in 2009 and why a bill coming in 2010 should be allowed to cancel a valid application?

I am against this visa capping bill because it will give wrong message to foreign students.
