

ATT. Submission for public benefits test for religious institutions.

Speakers of the House,

I personally think this is a great idea and would like to see localized committees created consisting of unbiased persons, this may include atheists, free masons, government officials and religious members from various sects of religious institutions. To ensure that there is an unbiased influence on the spending of the religious organizations there must be a balance of representatives for each localized committee, members therefore must include one member from localized Muslim, Hindu, Buddhist, Christian, Atheist, Jehovah and Scientology etc communities locally. This would ensure a truly unbiased approach to the approval of spending by all the religious sects on a localized scale.

Localized religious institutions would need to submit spending applications to their local committee for approval, weather this be for building maintenance works, political advertising or in fact any spending by that institution to ensure that there is a public benefit. Also all current spending could be audited by these committees including wages of the parishioners with school funding totally exempt from this providing it is a government approved education institution that does teach evolution and science. All others that do not teach this would not be exempt and therefore should be taxed on all fees collected just like any other business. Education institutions that do not teach evolution and science in reality should be closed, fined and founders goaled with all assets seized to fund the rehabilitation of the students.

I thank the members of the house for reading my submission and hope that is helps you remove the corruption of these institutions.

Sincerely Yours

Nevin Cartwright
