

PARLIAMENT OF AUSTRALIA

Senate Community Affairs Legislation Committee

Inquiry into the Commonwealth Redress Scheme for Institutional Child Sexual Abuse Bill 2017 and related bill

On 26 October 2017, the Australian Government introduced two Bills into the Australian Senate proposing a new Commonwealth redress scheme for survivors of institutional child sexual abuse (the Scheme).

The Minister for Social Services, the Hon Christian Porter MP, stated the Scheme "is designed to recognise the suffering survivors have experienced, to unequivocally accept that these events occurred and to ensure that each institution that has been responsible for abuse in their institutional settings must take responsibility for that abuse".

The Senate Selection of Bills Committee referred the Bills for inquiry to ensure these issues can be properly examined and all relevant stakeholders are given the opportunity to participate in decision making on this important issue.

The Community Affairs Legislation committee is seeking submissions from relevant advocacy organisations, survivor groups, impacted individuals and non-government organisations, on the provisions of the Scheme contained in the Bills.

Senator Slade Brockman, Chair of the Community Affairs Legislation Committee, said, "This redress scheme was developed by the Australian Government after extensive consultation with a broad range of stakeholders. Ensuring the voices and views of survivors and their advocates are included at every stage is a vital part of any healing process. This inquiry will ensure those voices continue to be heard and listened to."

Information about the Bills can be found on the inquiry web page. Submissions should address the provisions in the Bills. You may find it helpful to read the guide to making a submission available on the Senate website: Preparing a submission to an inquiry

The committee has scheduled a public hearing on Friday 16 February 2018. Information about the public hearing will be published on the inquiry website when it is available.
