Dear Members of the Senate Review into the ABC,

As an Australian citizen I expect the ABC to be a quality provider of information across the spectrum of news & culture and to be a producer of innovative quality programming. I want a broadcaster that provides me with considered opinions from a range of standpoints rather than sensational reportage and "infotainment". There is a duty to future generations that there remains at least one forum for critical thinking and exploration of Australian culture in the broadcasting field.

It is very important that:

- 1. the ABC to be less dependent on outsourced programming
- 2. the ABC to be funded and rebuilt so that it has strong specialist units to produce high levels of high quality and genuinely local in-house programming in all program genres on radio, TV and online
- 3. a public broadcaster that is focused on diversity and quality, not ratings

Yours faithfully,

Monica Walsh
