Thank you for using the ACORN system to submit a report. By doing this you are giving the governments and police agencies of Australia an accurate picture of the online environment. This picture will be used to direct police investigations and, most significantly, guide the development of new strategies to prevent crime and limit undesirable behaviour. Every ACORN report is important for building this picture.

Your ACORN report has been received and assessed by the South Australia Police.

Your report will not be investigated at this time as the incident you have described is not a criminal offence in South Australia. Your report will remain in the ACORN system, where it will be subject to ongoing analysis by police agencies across Australia. If a criminal offence is subsequently identified you will be contacted.

Should direct threats of harm be made and you feel there is a likelihood the threats will be carried out, you should either attend your local police station, call 131 444 for police attendance or call 000 in an emergency.
