This submission deals with the experience of a bankrupt who has been subjected to an unsupervised trustee.

- A bankrupt would reasonably adjust his/her affairs at the time, so as not to incur a debt that he/she was unable to pay.
- When I was finally informed late in CAP 12, I moved out of the family home so as not to further build a debt which I am unable to meet.

- On two separate occasions, after I made travel applications in order to work, (...)

 (...) withheld his letter of consent until the last business day before travel, and then without notice, sought extortionate sums of money (up to $10,500) to release my passport.
- On one of the above occasions, the letter of demand carried a partially incorrect address and was delivered two days after my proposed departure. I lost my job as a consequence.
- All correspondence carries the threat to extend my bankruptcy, despite my without fault compliance for 10 years, and my honouring, without infraction around 50+ travel orders in that time.
- The actions of (...) equate to the behaviour of the standover man.
- He trousers every cent, and nothing has ever leaked to a creditor.
- This licence to embrace blackmail, extortion and standover tactics under the guise of respectability, and without being accountable to anyone is effectively licensing a 'white collar mafia'.
- I am willing to appear before any inquiry or tribunal to expand on trustee incompetence and standover tactics.

Yours faithfully,

Bevan Crowley
