To Enquiry Secretary

Dear Sir/ Madam,

I was reading in our local newspaper "Friday 27 June Murrumbidgee Irrigator" that you are taking submissions up until July 18 on the electrol process.

I was wondering about the idea that in the letter that the Electrol Commission sends out to each voter when an election has been called that they include in the letter a sentence up to twenty words for an independant or forty words for a group on what each group or independant stands for. The sentence is submitted by the candidate to the electrol commission by a predetermined date set by the Electrol Commission and the limit on word size is strictly enforced otherwise the letter would become too big and be too expensive. This idea would improve our democracy by giving us more information as to what all the groups stand for.

Yours sincerely
Michael Bayles
