ADF Exchange Personnel in Afghanistan or Iraq

Member: Bevis

Hansard: page 27

How many Australian personnel are on exchange with other national forces and deployed in either Afghanistan or Iraq? What units are they with?

RESPONSE

As at 20 January, there were eight ADF members serving on exchange with other national forces in the Middle East area of operations. Three personnel were working with UK forces and five with US forces.

ADF Reservists in Iraq

Member: Bevis Hansard: page 28 Are there any ADF reservists serving in Iraq?

RESPONSE

Yes. As at 15 December 2003, there were eight reservists serving in the Middle East area of operations: one with the RAN, three with the Army and four with the RAAF.

ADF Involvement in Training New Iraqi Army

Member: Price

Hansard: page 30

How many ADF personnel are assisting in training the new Iraqi army?

RESPONSE

As at 15 December 2003, there were four ADF members serving in the Coalition Military Assistance Training Team Headquarters that administers the training of the New Iraqi Army.

ADF Cadets Program

Member: Bevis

Has any research been done into whether involvement in the ADF Cadets program has influenced cadets' decisions on whether to join the ADF?

RESPONSE

Research into factors influencing Cadets' movement into the ADF was carried out during a major review of Cadets in 2000. The review team interviewed over 1,000 Cadet participants and observed that about 30 per cent of Cadets, with over 24 months tenure in the program, move into the ADF.

Statistics from the 1999 and 2003 ADF Census indicate that approximately 20 per cent of Permanent and Reserve Force members have had previous involvement in the Cadets. During the first half of 2004, Defence intends to carry out a comprehensive attitudinal study of Cadets to ascertain their views on a range of issues. One specific component of the study will seek to identify those factors that influence Cadets to join the ADF.

ADF Cadets Units

- a) To what extent have new cadet units been established to follow population trends?
- b) Please provide a list by state and territory of cadet units, including identifying those which are school-based.

RESPONSE

a) New cadet units are established in areas where the local community expresses an interest and where sufficient numbers of young people are available. There are 472 Cadet units across all states and territories in Australia, of which 51 are based in schools.

b) An attachment is provided which lists Cadet units by state and territory, and identifies those units based in schools.

New Zealand Defence Force Life Skills Program

Member: Price

Has Defence monitored the New Zealand Defence Force Youth Life Skills and Limited Services Volunteer programs? Has any consideration been given to implementing similar programs in Australia?

RESPONSE

Defence is aware of the New Zealand programs. The Australian Defence Force Cadets are provided with similar opportunities to the New Zealand programs. There is no consideration currently being given to adapting elements of the New Zealand programs to the ADF cadet program.

Army/ATSIC Community Assistance Program (AACAP)

Member: Scott, Price

Hansard: pages 37, 38

- a) Does Defence follow up the status of former AACAP projects after the projects have been completed? (Price)
- b) How do communities become eligible for AACAP assistance? (Price)
- c) Is there any possibility that areas such as Western Sydney could become eligible for this type of assistance? (Price)
- d) Has there been any examination to recognise the achievements of ADF personnel on these AACAP programs through remuneration, medals or some other form of recognition? (Scott)

RESPONSE

- a) No. However, there is a defects liability period after completion of any constructed assets. If any problems with the constructed assets arise during that period, the Army, as project manager, will identify the cause and arrange for appropriate rectification. This may involve Army personnel or contractors performing the work.
- b) Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Services (ATSIS), the Army and the Department of Health and Ageing collaborate to identify the communities to benefit from assistance. Projects are identified taking into account existing ATSIS project impact assessments used to prioritise National Aboriginal Health Strategy projects, primary health needs data and Army capacities, deployment and training issues. In deciding the suitability of communities and possible project scopes, the views of ATSIS program managers and relevant state/territory agencies are generally sought.

The National Aboriginal Health Strategy project impact assessments methodology aims to give priority to communities with the greatest environmental health needs, in particular for priority housing and essential service infrastructure. The process evaluates candidate projects in an objective manner.

Assistance is also targeted to projects in remote communities in northern and central Australia which are large enough to warrant the use of Army resources and to require oversight by external program managers. Account is also taken of the Army's capacity, training objectives and availability of resources to undertake the various elements of the project.

The AACAP Steering Committee, after considering the merits of candidate communities, agrees on proposed projects at the national level. The proposed community is then consulted to seek its concurrence to the use of the Army in delivering the project. The community is under no obligation to participate in AACAP but, to date, no community has declined an AACAP project when offered.

c) No. Under the terms of the memorandum of understanding between the Army, ATSIS, ATSIC and the Department of Health and Ageing, AACAP specifically targets projects for high needs' remote communities located in northern Australia.

d) The last examination of the conditions of service package for ADF members on AACAP projects was undertaken in 2001. The examination was undertaken at three different remote work sites in the Northern Territory. As a result, modifications were made to the payment of field allowance. This recognised the prolonged periods of field service associated with AACAP projects and increased the rate of payment from $22.79 to $38.85 (current day dollars). The examination also reassessed the allocation of district allowances. The original allocation was justified and the grading remained unchanged.

Training for P-3C Crews

Please provide a comparison of training hours of P-3C crews on anti-submarine warfare training in 1999-2000 and 2002-03.

RESPONSE

P-3C crews conducted 288 flying hours dedicated to anti-submarine warfare training during 1999–2000 and 293 flying hours in 2002–03.

Air-to-Air Refuelling Tankers

At a conference on 30 April 2003, a US CENTAF review of the experience in Operation Iraqi Freedom stated that around 20-25 air-to-air refuelling tankers were needed to refuel a fleet of between 70-100 fighters? Can Defence comment on this statement, considering that Defence is purchasing 4 or 5 tankers?

RESPONSE

The number of tankers required for an operation is dependent on the operational scenario and the type and number of aircraft being used.

The Australian requirement is for four wide-bodied air-to-air refuelling aircraft with an option for a fifth aircraft, which will represent a significant increase in capability compared to the current Boeing 707 tanker fleet.

The number of tankers being acquired has been determined based on assessment of what would be needed to support credible contingencies. The chosen fleet will support credible operations in two distinct areas or support a more significant operation in a single area.

The proposed air-to-air refuelling fleet, in conjunction with the strike/fighter force, offers a credible offensive capability, should that be necessary, while providing a viable deterrence capability.

Transporting Leopard Tanks

How many Leopard tanks can be transported in the Navy's amphibious craft?

RESPONSE

There are four types of ADF amphibious craft capable of carrying Leopard 1 tanks. These are:

- HMA Ships Kanimbla and Manoora (amphibious transport ships) 21 tanks each.
- HMAS Tobruk (amphibious heavy lift ship) 18 tanks.
- Balikpapan-class heavy landing craft three tanks in each of the six platforms, with a total of 18 tanks.
- Medium landing craft (62 tonne craft carried on amphibious transport ships and HMAS Tobruk) one tank in each of the 15 craft in the inventory, although only six would normally be deployed in a task force at any one time.

Cost of Regular Army Company

What is the cost per annum of a Regular Army company of about 120?

RESPONSE

The cost per annum of a regular Army company, based on the average rank of corporal, is approximately $13.4m. This cost includes salary, allowances in the nature of salary, housing, accrued leave and superannuation and general and administrative overheads.

Pacific Patrol Boat Program

Member: Bevis Hansard: page 67 What have been the benefits to regional engagement of the Pacific Patrol Boat program?

RESPONSE

The Defence contribution to Australia's regional engagement in the Pacific focuses on regional security and the development of credible, professional and accountable security capabilities for individual nations. The Pacific Patrol Boat program contributes to these objectives in the following ways:

- Maritime surveillance capability. Since delivery of the first boat in 1987, the Pacific Patrol Boat program has gradually built a regional maritime surveillance capability from a near-zero base. It provides a level of self-reliance for many small nations to protect and enforce their sovereignty within their exclusive economic zones. This, in turn, reduces the Pacific's vulnerability to people smuggling, piracy, illegal fishing of territorial waters, transnational crime and other asymmetric threats to the region.
- Nation building. Twelve participating countries utilise 22 patrol boats¹ to conduct surveillance, search and rescue operations, quarantine, disaster relief, medical evacuation, hydrographic survey and general police/security work. The Pacific Patrol Boat program provides an important asset for responding to natural disasters and emergencies, responsibility for which would otherwise fall to Australia and other countries.
- Maritime training. Training received through Defence Cooperation provides an accumulating body of experience in each country participating in the Pacific Patrol Boat program. For example, all Pacific Patrol Boat crew training is conducted through the Australian Maritime College in Launceston, Tasmania. The Defence Cooperation Program also provides post-basic naval skills, leadership and management training through crew attendance on ADF courses.
- Accruing benefits for the region. In addition to the benefits for regional security, economic benefits accrue from the ship registration, licensing and fines that result from the credible enforcement capability provided by the patrol boats. Environmental protection mechanisms, for instance the prevention of illegal and unsustainable fishing, are also improved by trained police or defence force personnel patrolling waters, coastal access and entry points, policing shore establishments such as wharfs and marine warehouses, and maintaining communications between main and outer islands. Closer regional cooperation through formal mechanisms such as the Pacific Island Forum and the Forum Fishing Agency are enhanced by the development of regional cooperative surveillance arrangements, which have already resulted in increased prosecution of illegal activity and improved compliance returns by licensed operators.

ADF Officers with an Asian Language

What is the number and percentage of ADF officers who have an Asian language?

RESPONSE

The number of officers recorded as having Asian language skills is 316 Regular officers and 250 Reserve officers. This is approximately three per cent of the total number of officers. This response is based on data recorded on Defence's personnel management system database, PMKeyS, and covers languages learnt in the course of employment and second languages. The provision of information on second languages is voluntary. Further, an officer may be recorded as having more than one language.

Post Graduate Scholarships at ADFA

Hansard: page 74

How many post-graduate scholarships at ADFA are offered to officers from overseas defence forces?

RESPONSE

Sixty-five postgraduate scholarships are offered to overseas officers to study in Australia every year. Officers can choose the educational institute at which they would like to study. In any one year, usually about 40 of these officers study at ADFA.

QUESTION W17

Medals Member: Committee Secretariat Hansard: Written

- a) What are the guidelines for issuing the Australian Service Medal and the Australian Active Service Medal?
- b) For each year, during the past 10 years, how many Australian Service Medals and Australian Active Service Medals have been awarded?

RESPONSE

a) The Australian Active Service Medal and the Australian Service Medal were instituted in 1988 as general service medals to recognise the contribution of members of the Australian Defence Force in warlike and non-warlike operations. The Australian Service Medal is awarded to recognise members of the ADF who rendered service in certain non-warlike military operations after 14 February 1975. The Australian Active Service Medal is awarded to recognise members of the ADF who rendered service in warlike operations after 14 February 1975. Clasps denoting the area of service are awarded with the medal. Clasps can be awarded separately where a member is already in receipt of a medal.

Approval to award the medals and appropriate clasp is given by the Governor-General on the recommendation of the Minister for Defence in accordance with the medal regulations.

Year	Australian Service Medals	Australian Service Medals Clasp	Australian Active Service Medals	Australian Active Service Medals Clasp
2003	1,987	286	2,908	2,248
2002	3,241	408	5,025	1,017
2001	2,266	264	3,289	117
2000	975	111	11,359	432
1999	1,473	83	499	10
1998	2,069	181	1	0
1997	154	14	4	0
1996	288	12	0	0
1995	777	36	0	0
1994	109	10	196	2
Total	13,339	1,405	23,281	3,826

b) Australian Service Medals and Australian Active Service Medals awarded during the past ten years are shown in the table below.
