

Committee Secretary

As an Australian born Returned Serviceman who served in excess of 20 years with the RAAF I am absolutely opposed to the way in which our own heritage is under fire from certain sections of the non Australian born communities which have been accepted into OUR country.

In my view the term "Multi-cultural" does nothing to enhance our way of life and, in fact, does more to promote disharmony than promote harmony.

If it were within my power I would have the term banned. We are, in my opinion, AUSTRALIA, a land which accepts people from many different cultures. We should be encouraging those whom we accept into our country to assimilate in every possible way. This should include acceptance of the values for which our forebears fought, and in many cases died for.

Anyone wishing to be allowed to take up residence in Australia should have to accept OUR way of life. If they cannot, we do not need them here.

Yours sincerely
