

Dear Sir,

Having been born overseas in Thailand and now an Australian citizen, I would like to state the following.

Evidence from Europe is now so clear that we should all know what the results of today's multiculturalism really are.

Multiculturalism has led to 'multi-faithism' where all religions are promoted as good and equally valid especially Islam.

Evidence from NSW in the last few days gives us a stark picture of what 'Multiculturalism' means.

The NSW State Election saw an increase in the number of Muslim candidates nominated by the Liberal Party and the ALP as well as Independent Muslim candidates.

Clearly, the more Muslim MPs there are the more likely it is that they will support the modern idea of Multiculturalism and the Islamic idea that the whole world needs to be Islamic and live under Islamic Sharia law.

The reason many people come here is because Australia is based on Christian values.

All Australians need to have a say in 'multiculturalism' not just immigrants.

All immigration from other countries to Australia must rely on balanced numbers from each country and social economic groups.

No one religious, national, geographic, political group should be favoured to maintain true multiculturalism..

The freedom we have comes from believing that ALL people are equal but that all cultures and lifestyles are not.
