

Dear Sir/Madam

Thank you for providing the opportunity for input regarding multiculturalism in Australia.

Multiculturalism in Australia has unfortunately provided a politically correct platform from which certain immigrant groups agitate for change. These groups do not want to assimilate themselves into the Australian society and in fact do not like our cultural values.

Instead they seek to impose the corrupt and oppressive values of the countries from which they come, and from which they in many cases running away from.

The Australian Government needs to be much more discerning about the origin of immigrant peoples seeking to come to Australia, and needs to make sure these immigrant peoples support Australian values and are willing to assimilate into Australia and it's cultural values.

Regards
