

CONTENTS

CHAIRMAN’S FOREWORD	V
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.....	VIII
ABBREVIATIONS.....	IX
SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATIONS.....	XV
1. OVERVIEW	1
The conduct of the inquiry.....	1
Limitations of the inquiry	1
Defining ‘the arts’	3
Arts education - why bother?	5
Self-expression is fundamental	5
‘The arts make you better at something else’	6
The arts as ‘industry’ -	8
- or as creative thinking?	12
Arts education as vocational training	15
Too many artists?	17
Conclusion on the purposes of arts education.....	19
The importance of attitudes	20
Rhetoric versus action	22
The importance of community involvement.....	25
Solutions?	29
Arts enrolments at school and uni: the status quo	30
Growing elective arts enrolments.....	30
Year 11 and 12 enrolments.....	30
Enrolments in years below Year 11	34
University arts enrolments	34
Uni. entrance and Year 12 subject choice.....	35
Paradoxes in the status quo	38
Need to monitor disciplines, not only institutions	41
2. ARTS TEACHING - THE CYCLE OF NEGLECT	42
The plight of primary classroom teachers attempting arts	42
Effects of their own poor arts experiences in school	42
Cutbacks in teacher training.....	44
Lack of support in school administrations	46
Declining centralised curriculum support	46
Declining use of primary specialists	47
Devolution of decision-making to schools.....	49
A silk purse from a sow’s ear?	50
Arts teaching in secondary schools	52

Teacher training - a case for positive discrimination?.....	54
The Commonwealth's responsibility for teacher training.....	57
Specialist teachers and visiting artists	58
More specialists or 'skilled-up' generalists?.....	58
Or a mixture?.....	59
Need for 'visiting artist' programs.....	60
Need for more tailored teacher training	61
Need for more crossover between doing and teaching -	63
Need for more crossover between arts bodies and education bodies.....	65
Conclusion on primary specialists versus generalists	66
Creative thinking should permeate the curriculum	66
Inservice professional development for teachers.....	67
Better inservice professional development is needed	67
Special problems of arts teachers	68
Teachers' professional associations try to fill the gap	69
The National Professional Development Program.....	71
The role of teachers' professional associations.....	72
The role of universities.....	73
3. ARTS IN THE SCHOOL CURRICULUM -	75
HOW MUCH IS ENOUGH?	75
Slicing the cake - a fifth of an eighth?.....	75
More time for the arts?.....	75
Time spent versus educational outcomes.....	76
Tendency to rely on extra-curricular activities	80
How to define fair shares?.....	82
'To each according to their needs'	84
One subject or five?	85
Do everything a little or a few things well?	86
There are factions among arts educators	87
Conclusions	89
The National Curriculum for schools	90
The National Curriculum described	90
Some doubts	92
The concerns of arts educators	92
'...one piece in a giant industrial chess game'?.....	94
Standards and outcomes	94
Five subjects = one Key Learning Area?.....	97
The top-down nature of the National Curriculum.....	100
Conclusions on the National Curriculum	101
It's too soon to tell.....	101
But there are serious concerns.....	101
How to 'teach' creative thinking?	102

4. 'KEY COMPETENCIES' IN SCHOOLS -.....	105
FOR WORK OR FOR LIFE?	105
The 'Mayer Key Competencies' described	105
Some general issues to do with the Key Competencies	108
How important does a competency have to be?	108
What about values and attitudes?	110
For work or for life?	111
A single organising concept?	115
A new balance of power.....	115
Arts educators' concerns about the Key Competencies	116
Creative processes versus measurable outcomes	117
A Key Competency for 'aesthetic awareness'?	120
The most important thing is the list itself.....	122
Conclusions on the Mayer Key Competencies.....	123
5. UNIVERSITY REFORMS - THE ROUGH END OF THE PINEAPPLE FOR THE ARTS?	125
The Unified National System of universities	125
A few amalgamated arts school are happy -	126
- but most are not happy.....	127
The Relative Funding Model for university teaching costs.....	130
Arts educators unanimous in condemning the model	131
The Commonwealth acknowledged problems at the time	133
Universities do use the model internally	135
Need for periodical review	136
Funding research in universities	138
The arts falls between two stools	139
The right definition of 'research'	142
The 'research quantum'	144
Conclusion on arts in university	147
FIGURES.....	149
Figure 1: Public attitudes to defining 'the arts'	150
Figure 2: Public attitudes to the value of the arts	151
Figure 3: Total supply and final demand for cultural goods and services, Australia 1989-90.....	152
Figure 4: Total household expenditure on cultural goods and services, Australia, & 1988-89.....	153
Figure 5: Time spent on religious, social and leisure activities, Australia 1992.....	154
Figure 6: 'Work' and hobbies in selected cultural activities, 1993	155

Figure 7: Paid and unpaid 'work' in selected cultural activities, 1993.....	156
Figure 8: Yr 12 enrolments in tertiary-accredited subjects, Aust. 1988 & 1993.....	157
Figure 9: Year 12 enrolments in selected tertiary-accredited arts subjects, Australia, 1985-1993.....	158
Figure 10: Year 12 enrolments in arts subjects and participation in arts 'courses' correlated to other characteristics of the enrolled students.....	159
Figure 11: Reasons for Year 12 students' choice of subjects.....	160
Figure 12: University enrolments in arts subjects, 1989 & 1993.....	161
Figure 13: Compulsory teaching hours of primary music education in preservice teacher training programs in New South Wales.....	162
Figure 14: The Mayer Key Competencies.....	163
Figure 15: The weightings of the Relative Funding Model for university teaching costs (1990).....	164
APPENDIX 1: TERMS OF REFERENCE.....	165
APPENDIX 2: SUBMISSIONS.....	166
APPENDIX 3: HEARINGS AND WITNESSES.....	178
APPENDIX 4: THE HOBART DECLARATION ON SCHOOLING.....	186
APPENDIX 5: SAMPLES FROM NATIONAL CURRICULUM DOCUMENTS..	188
APPENDIX 6: SOME STATISTICS ON ARTS IN SCHOOLS.....	189
APPENDIX 7: THEMATIC SUMMARY OF SUBMISSIONS.....	207
BIBLIOGRAPHY.....	208