12 NATIONAL LIBRARY OF AUSTRALIA

Senator Campbell, at the request of Senator Lundy and pursuant to notice of motion not objected to as a formal motion, moved general business notice of motion no. 875—That the Senate—

(a) notes that:

(i) legal deposit is a statutory provision found in the legislation of most countries requiring producers of publications to deposit gratis copies of their works in libraries, usually the national library,

(ii) in Australia, the Copyright Act 1968 requires Australian publishers to deposit one copy of every publication with the National Library of Australia (NLA),

(iii) the National Library Act 1960 requires the NLA to develop and maintain a national collection of library material relating to Australia and the Australian people and legal deposit is a major factor enabling the NLA to meet this requirement,

(iv) legal deposit has ensured that an outstanding collection of Australian publications in print form has been acquired by the NLA on behalf of the nation,

(v) the NLA is seeking revision of the legal deposit section within the Copyright Act 1968 to encompass publications in non-print form due to the impact of new technologies and the Internet on the creation, publication and dissemination of information, which has been profound in recent years,

(vi) a significant amount of Australia’s documentary heritage is now published in electronic form and unless the NLA is given a mandate through legal deposit to collect non-print publications, many of these works will be lost to future generations, especially as many electronic works have a very short life-span on the Internet, and

(vii) the NLA is collecting a very small proportion of Australian electronic publications, as this endeavour requires seeking permission on a publication-by-publication basis, which is very resource intensive and unsustainable into the future;

(b) calls on the Government, as a matter of urgency, to introduce legislation to extend legal deposit to non-print publications, as such legislation is of strategic importance to the future collection and preservation role of the NLA; and

(c) recognises that other countries have already acknowledged this and legal deposit legislation has been amended in the United Kingdom, Canada, New Zealand, South Africa, France, Japan and the Scandinavian countries.

40 WATER BILL 2007
WATER (CONSEQUENTIAL AMENDMENTS) BILL 2007

Order of the day read for the adjourned debate on the motion of the Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Finance and Administration (Senator Colbeck)—That these bills be now read a second time.

Debate resumed.

Senator O’Brien moved the following amendment in respect of the Water Bill 2007:

At the end of the motion, add “but the Senate:

(a) notes that modern national water reform began with the Murray-Darling Basin Act 1993 and the historic Council of Australian Governments agreement on water reform in 1994 led by the Keating Labor government;

(b) regrets that, despite clear warning signals about the health of the river system, it has taken 13 more years to see the next stage of Commonwealth action to address the problems of the Murray-Darling Basin;

(c) is concerned that the legislation before the Senate represents a second best solution on national water reform;
(d) deplores the Government’s failure to consult in good faith with state governments and other stakeholders over the Water Bill 2007 and the related intergovernmental agreement;
(e) believes the water reform process must continue so we properly fix the over-allocation of water licences in the Murray-Darling Basin, ensure harmony between the environment and consumptive use, and help address the impact of drought and climate change on water supply; and
(f) notes that:
   (i) climate change will have a significant impact on water supply generally and the health of the Murray-Darling Basin in particular;
   (ii) the Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organisation will provide an important report in late 2007 on the hydrology of the Basin and what the sustainable extraction levels are for the Basin, and
   (iii) the following is needed for national water reform:
      (A) a cooperative and constructive approach with state governments to assist water reform and investment in urban and rural water infrastructure,
      (B) full implementation of the national water initiative principles agreed to in 2004,
      (C) fixing of the over-allocation of water licences once and for all, and the establishment of coherent, streamlined rules which ensure the problem of over-allocation never recurs,
