Dear Mr Windsor,
Murray Darling Basin Plan.

As pensioners living in Leney we are concerned about the percentage of water allocated to farmers and towns.

There will be possibilities of services being taken away from us. The future for farmers, schools hospital and population decreasing in the area.

Apparently before the Hume Dam and the lake at Yarrawonga were created the river ceased to flow sufficiently for wet land and River Red Gum forests, but came back when there was sufficient water.

There is a growing population in Australia and if there is insufficient irrigation there will be less food, we don't need a lot of imported products.

Yours Faithfully
G. H. & J. Williams
