Topic: Business revenue

Senator Urquhart, Anne asked:

Once in steady state operations, what proportion of overall revenue is expected to come from businesses?

Answer:

The segmentation of premises between residential and business is subject to further refinement of both the specific definitions used (for example treatment of home office premises) and the data available to measure the volume of premises within each segment. While nbn continues to refine these data points, it is currently estimated that business revenue will make up between 15-20 per cent of overall revenues once in steady state operations.
