Answer

1. The Department of Education and Training has finalised contractual arrangements with ESA for the development of the platform. The contract is not a public document so a copy is attached for the committee.
2. Cost sharing arrangements for the move to online assessments have been agreed by the COAG Education Council. Under these arrangements, the Commonwealth is investing up to $24.7 million in the development of the platform.
3. The contract between the department and Education Services Australia (ESA) sets out payment schedules and delivery milestones that require the platform to be ready for user testing from June 2016 and to deliver the National Assessment Program (NAP) — Civics and Citizenship sample assessment in October 2016 and NAPLAN online in May 2017.

The Department of Education and Training has established a Programme Control Board to oversee the execution of the contract. The Education Council has also established an Online Assessment Working Group to oversee progress of the interdependent work streams necessary to deliver national assessments online.

4. No.

5. No.

6. ESA is a not-for-profit company owned by all Australian education ministers to provide online services to the education and training sectors in Australia and has expertise in this area. ESA will manage the development and ongoing maintenance of the platform and is responsible for the integration of components of the platform.

ESA will procure the technical components that make up the platform through competitive procurement processes.

7. ESA is established under the Corporations Act 2001. The ESA Constitution does not require its annual report to be tabled in any Australian Parliament.

8. ESA does not receive ongoing core funding from the Government and therefore does not appear as its own line item in Portfolio Budget Statements (PBS). The Government commissions ESA to undertake work on a project-by-project basis as required. This project funding appears in the PBS under relevant appropriation titles.

9. ESA has not appeared at Senate Estimates. Whether the Committee has power to call ESA to appear is a matter for the Secretariat of the Committee.

10. The Commonwealth Minister can divest his share of ESA under terms outlined in the ESA Constitution.

11. The ESA Constitution does not provide a 'monetary value' for each member's share.
