Answer

The Department of Education was established on 18 September 2013. Previously the functions were delivered by the Department of Education, Employment and Workplace Relations (DEEWR).

1. The department's Pay TV subscription is a package containing Sky News, Sky Business and Australian Public Affairs (APAC) channels. The subscriptions provide both national and international perspectives and breaking news on a broad range of issues which both directly and indirectly impact on the work of the department.

For the period 7 September to 17 September, the Department of Education, Employment and Workplace Relations paid $0 for pay TV services. For the period 18 September to 30 November 2013 the Department of Education¹ paid $864 for pay TV services.

The Ministers' offices are provided with either the Business Information and Sports package or the Business Premium package.

For the period 7 September to 17 September 2013 the Ministers' offices paid $80 for pay TV services. For the period 18 September to 30 November 2013 the Ministers' offices paid $1,357 for pay TV services.

2 and 3. The department subscribes to the newspapers and magazines listed in the table below. The reasons for the subscriptions include: monitoring of articles on government policy with reference to Government programs delivered by the department; current local, national and international political issues; providing access to up to date international research and analysis on key issues to the department; and emerging issues relevant to the department.

Details of magazine and newspaper subscriptions for the departments for the period 7 September 2013 to 30 November 2013 are below.

4. The department purchases a range of publications in order to maintain current knowledge of government policy with reference to Government programs delivered by the department; current local, national and international political issues; international research and analysis on key issues to the department; and emerging issues relevant to the department. To provide a listing of all publications would be an unnecessary diversion of resources.

For the period 7 September to 17 September 2013 the Department of Education, Employment and Workplace Relations paid $1,604 for publications. For the period 18 September to 30 November 2013 the Department of Education¹ paid $10,184 for publications.

For the period 7 September to 17 September 2013 the Ministers' offices paid $1,562 for publications. For the period 18 September to 30 November 2013 the Ministers' offices paid $5,034 for publications.

¹. Corporate and the State Office Network provide services to the Department of Education and the Department of Employment. The value associated with these functions has been attributed to both departments.
