Question:

Senator WONG: There was no advice sought from the department in relation to the change in policy prior to the announcement?

Senator Cormann: That was obviously a political judgement made by the government and one that the government takes responsibility for.

Senator WONG: Sure, I am not asking that. I just want to know: if there was no advice provided then that is the answer. Was there any advice provided in relation to the change of policy before the announcement?

Ms Cross: Sorry, Senator?

Senator WONG: Was there any advice provided by PM&C in relation to the change in policy prior to the announcement?

Ms Cross: I do not think so, but I will check for you.

Senator WONG: Do I understand from that, therefore, that the IDC was only informed the Prime Minister had abandoned his PPL scheme as a consequence of the public announcement?

Ms Cross: Again, I would need to check whether the IDC was still meeting at this point in time because, as I said, a number of things were in abeyance until the legislation was finalised.

Answer:

The Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet did not provide advice in relation to the change in policy prior to the Prime Minister's announcement.

The Paid Parental Leave Inter-Departmental Committee's last meeting was 22 January 2015. The Committee was not informed of the decision prior to announcement.
