

Radio Copy

Client: Family Law Reform

Job No:

Details: 30 seconds

Date: 06 July 2006

VO: Parents going through separation should be able to agree on what's best for their children, rather than fighting it out in a courtroom.

That's why, under new family laws, there's a much greater focus on children's best interests rather than legal issues.

To help parents work out what's best for their kids, the Australian Government is expanding services to assist them in resolving issues.

To find out more, call the Family Relationships Advice Line on 1800 050 321.

Authorised by the Australian Government, Canberra.

Spoken by...

Radio Copy

Client: Family Law Reform

Job No:

Details: 30 seconds

Date: 06 July 2006

VO: All children have a right to grow up with the love and support of both their parents and both parents have a responsibility to raise their children, even after separation.

That's why newly introduced family laws focus on children's best interests.

The aim is for children to be able to have a meaningful relationship with both parents. And for parents, it's about sharing the responsibilities and enjoyment of day-to-day parenting.

To find out more, call the Family Relationships Advice Line on 1800 050 321.

Authorised by the Australian Government, Canberra.

Spoken by...