To Mr Elton Humphery, Secretary, Community Affairs,
References Committee.

Dear Mr Humphery.

Cradle to grave, institutional and personal, seventy percent of abuse in NSW is neglect. That only leaves room for domestic violence to be barely comensurate with the prevalence of wives and girlfriends in the population. It would be a myth, but it's a fraud.

In a particularly lucid moment that I think must have been inspired, I came to the conclusion that the pseudo left, but actually elitists, organisational mindset of government agencies is the main and worst problem in health and community services. That is why children at risk and the mentally ill, the lowest socio economic common denominators regardless of other criteria such as gender or race, are worst of in NSW the most politically correct state. Their emphasis on agendas is about themselves, not the vulnerable or disadvantaged. The mentally ill are also a microcosm and barometers, what's bad for us is bad for society in general.

Your's sincerely, I/4/04.

To Elton Humphery, Secretary, Community Affairs Ref Comm.

Dear Mr Humphery.

By "institutional" I mean organisational, not children in institutions. All children and the developmentally and psychiatrically disabled in NSW are at the mercy of the denial of legal aid and loss of the presumption of innocence in AVO matters. What proves nothing can effect their ability to PROTECT, access or support their children. It can also effect their employment prospects for no other reason than spite.

My arguements can be cross referenced artistically, philosophically, psychologically and mathematically. The only thing femenist have between more natural fathers being frustrated in dealing with deadbeat mothers and the deadbeats they bring into the household than there are children supposedly protected by AVO's is scewd staistics.

Your's sincerely, 22/4/04
