

No need to waffle on here, as the point is now doubt being hammered home by others. Simply put, without plans to secure the environments future and reverse the effects of millennia of humans soiling the world, there will be no humans.

Clearly this should be the governments number one priority. Jobs can be created by looking at ways to protect and clean the environment, new technologies developed and sold to aid this direction and ultimately the government will prosper by having healthy happy citizens.

Please make drastic changes to the policies in place and ensure the future of mankind by getting things done now. There is no tomorrow.
