

To Senators on the Senate Select Committee on Climate Policy,

Emission trading schemes are complex and a cost to the taxpayer. The current scheme amounts to a device to transfer large amounts of money to large polluters.

A simple carbon tax puts the cost where it belongs, on the companies that pollute and the consumers who buy the products.

Name: Allan Jeffreys