

To Senators on the Senate Select Committee on Climate Policy,

I am not familiar with the science of our current environmental disaster but I can well understand the economic system we all labour under the delusion of being 'all there is'.

As the world's leaders, people such as yourselves, fiddle while Rome burns pretending to stave off global economic disaster through the immoral support of the very thieves and carpetbaggers who have brought the GFC upon us all, your collective solution to this environmental situation we find ourselves in is to create, what?... a market based system!

God forbid that we have Moodies and 'bankers' or 'hedge funds' and 'investors' running this latest financial scam on our behalf.

The 'market based solution', the golden trophy of capitalism, the raison d'etre of the Coalition, the new found wonder drug of Rudd and his ALP cronies, who are not, so he says, any longer at least, 'neo-liberals'..ha ha ha... is maybe not the way to attempt to organise the future of our world.

Turn again Whittington, and Senators for that matter, and re-examine what the 'market' has just delivered us all, and then ask yourselves why we should trust a single capitalist carpetbagger, or their political supporters, people such as yourselves, with our global environmental future.

Look within the readily available literature for an alternative solution... it lies there, ready to go, but we are served by those with nose rings fitted, unable to imagine a different economic system.

Thank you
