

The Senate committee

I am extremely concerned about the lack of intelligent action being taken to bring our atmosphere back into balance.

The stimulus package was and is a fast, if you want to make definite change, I suggest using the money on re-usable energy and training people in the field of solar energy or wind turbines, thus reducing our use of coal and petroleum. This will create jobs and give people a real purpose.

Spending on material junk is not going to help our earth, we have reaped it enough! That is a band aid solution.

As a homeowner I do my best to reduce my energy use. I have solar hot water and have switched to green energy, my lights are low watt and I use my water very carefully, recycling whatever I can. I have been informed that all my hard work has been in vain because I am making it easier for the real polluters to get away with polluting more. I am appalled at a government that who supposedly (Mr Rudd keeps reminding us) a government run by morals and ethics. There is nothing moral about destroying the earth and the innocent creatures who reside here. Man's arrogance is getting out of hand.

I want action from this government, that is why the people wanted change - not more lies.

Yours sincerely

J Stephen
