Submission on Censurship referable to swearing on the T.V.

I believe swearing is a matter of taste not morals.
If one finds it distastful one has a choice with T.V. to turn it off. One does not seek guidance or restriction from government on matters of taste. If swearing became a frequent and excessive expectation in Australian broadcasting one could complain to the programmers of the channel ^{or channels} or protest on the trend in the public arena through the media at large.
