

I am concerned that the means testing of the solar power rebate is preventing many households from installing solar power panels. The reality is that only diehard environmentalists will pay for the full cost of solar panels out of their own pockets. The cost of the panels far outweighs any financial offsets via electricity bills. I urge you to restore the full rebate to all people who are prepared to go solar for their electricity.

Yours Sincerely
Anton Zirngast