

I oppose changes to the bill which will diminish our empathy as humans with the suggestion that the economic interests of the nation can be used as leverage when our authority as a nation to dictate how we respect others comes into question.