

To whom it may concern,

I wish to express my total opposition to the new bill on anti-terrorism measures.

As a democratic country, I believe we should be permitted to exercise all rights to freedom, including the right to silence and the right to voice our own opinion. Human rights are not negotiable, and so should not be with-held under any means, or for any reasons.

This legislation is unnecessary and a breach of our own civil liberties, and in addition is extremely unlikely to make any significant difference to the "War on Terror".

Indeed, taking away civil liberties is considered an act of terrorism in itself.

Yours Sincerely,

Paul Lickorish
Sydney, NSW
