

Dear member,

Ken Cannane from Amroba can more eloquently express my thoughts. And I do support his position.

The list of things wrong with CASA is long and troubling.

#1 on my list is Get the regulations in order. Go to the FAA regulations, Change the F to a A and you have a pretty good set of regulations. In my opinion that is basically what the European Union did. They changed it to a J.

#2 If you allow CASA to keep two sets of regulations in effect at the same time allow the people who want safe aviation to register their aircraft in another country. This is already legal Under ICAO regulations.

#3 I would very much like to be able to be licensed to practice in australia. I have 25 years aviation experience. So far it has proven to be impossible. The cost and confusion of ever changing goal posts has made it not worth while.

#4 This applies to all government agencies in australia. They do not honor what they say. If they say they will do something, dad gummit put it in writing and do it.

#5 CASA has consistently failed to listen to the little guy when he tells them that the wheels are about to come off.

I am thoroughly disgusted by my dealings with CASA. I was promised help in setting up business here and it disappeared as soon as I got here. No wonder skilled immigrants are loathe to come here.

Sincerely

George Abernathy
